Abstract

In most Africa occurred wars that related with colonial independence wars and after that there were conflict wars, so the nursing development in Africa has involved through three cardinal periods, namely precolonial, colonial and the post-colonial periods in most African Countries except in Ethiopia. The nursing care took from the experimental practice and experience since that the nursing in Africa develop and reached in area where there is no available in medical services the experience gained from sick and wounded, especially in African countries where inter and intra tribal wars frequently occurs. However, like in Europe and rest of the world, the Africa, not much is known about nursing.

Since that the training of nurses and midwives in Africa was established and regulated by the Nursing and Midwives in Some Africa organizations, some of three African countries took cognizance of the National Policy on Education in developing sound educational principles essential to the preparation of nurses to function to improve the Nursing and midwives in Africa to cover health services in Africa.

So, after developed and ensure that policies, programs and activities were developed and implement to achieve with the goal of promoting a maintaining excellence in nursing education and practices as provided in conformity with local and international standards. Some African countries like Ethiopia Nursing education is controlled by the Health Professional Council of which Ethiopia Nursing association is the member under the ministry of health.
