Introduction

The post-WW2 international system revolves around the depopulation/globalization axis and has the United Nations as its neutral coordinating agency, the triumphant Allied Powers as its political and military enforcement agents, and 'mutual coercion mutually agreed upon' as its operating principle. Fundamentally, this system deals with mankind's existential problems, which are international security prerogatives that trump all other prerogatives and are consequently being accomplished through extrajudicial methods because failure to accomplish them would spell the end of human civilization.

Since its inception in 1945, the depopulation program has proceeded covertly and by deception while the globalization program has proceeded overtly and by coercion, as detailed in Peace without Poison, Survival or Extinction, Killing Us Softly, Chemical and Biological Depopulation and Depop Secrets [1-5]. The depopulation program tames and limits the instinct to procreate and the globalization program addresses the instinct to survive. While globalization enables the sharing of vital natural resources across the world for the sake of combatting extreme poverty and eventually creating universal prosperity – and to this end crafts policies that address the uneven distribution of resources across the planet and displace control over them from national to transnational bodies – depopulation enables the balancing of people and resources for the sake of preserving international peace and averting nuclear war, conserving non-renewable resources and the environment for future generations and creating a sustainable civilization and to this end imposes sacrifices on every human being.

The depopulation program seeks to stabilize the global population at a sustainable level, which given the current per capita ecological footprint has been calculated to be 4.3 billion (refer Overshoot Index), by imperceptibly subverting fertility to sub-replacement level (i.e., fewer than 2.1 children per women) and increasing morbidity and mortality to levels that are higher than the birth rate so the population of any given country gradually decreases to optimal levels – that is to say to levels that can be sustained in perpetuity with renewable natural resources without destroying the planet's life support systems by transgressing planetary boundaries – at which point births will be limited and deaths managed so they are in perfect balance at 10 each for every 1000 citizens and life expectancy will be limited at 70 to 75 years during the critical fourth and fifth stages of the demographic transition (the transition from high birth and death rates to low birth and death rates and thus from a growing to a stable population) when there are too few working people to bear the economic burden of the old [6-10].

Because the rights to live and breed are fundamental and inalienable, governments, in collusion with the UN and its agencies, bypass the rule of law and blindside democratic checks and balances to wage a war of attrition against the global population through covert chemical and biological means that aim to subvert fertility, promote mortality and limit longevity and through psychosocial and economic methods that subvert the family structure so as to keep families few and small, all the while preserving the illusion of legality and legitimacy despite violating the Genocide Convention [11].

To accomplish this, national and international authorities, both secular and religious, hide their geopolitical intentions behind plausible deniability and impose genocide through false research, misleading news, the compartmentalization of knowledge, hierarchical governing structures, secrecy, manufactured consent and judicial protection thus turning medicine and public health into handmaidens of genocide, individual nations into de facto concentration camps, the entire planet into a theater of war, and every human being on the planet into a target, a victim and a beneficiary [12].

The ethical boundaries for this global genocide are set by religious authorities, which currently permit the involuntary sterilization of the masses only while healing or preventing disease (refer paragraph 15 in encyclical Humanae Vitae: On the Regulation of Birth) [13]. Secular authorities work within the ethical parameters set by religious authorities and the military-industrial complex conceives and applies the methods of depopulation by adulterating the basic elements of life: water, food, beverages, cosmetic and consumer products – and most recently the air also – so that no one escapes the depopulation regime.

The consequences of this system are grave and tragic as witnessed by the fact that the demographic transition (the euphemism used for the depopulation program) has caused the epidemiological transition, that is to say the protracted and covert mass poisoning of the masses through the basic elements of life for the sake of limiting fertility and longevity has caused the epidemic of non-communicable diseases that have displaced infectious diseases as the primary killer of the global population, and have also damaged the genetic and intellectual endowment of mankind as well as lowering the quality of life of billions of people and threatening mankind with extinction [14,15].

Unable to change course because this system was designed to be impervious to challenge, governments are desperately trying to complete the stabilization and reduction of the global population through genocide by attempting to replace depopulation by covert chemical means with depopulation by mandatory immunization programs via vaccines that use the latest genetic knowhow to reprogram the human body to impede its own proper development of the reproductive system and to weaken the immune system with periodic vaccines so that no one lives to his or her natural end or dies from natural causes.

The depopulation program is currently driven by the understanding that having come close to our planet's maximum carrying capacity we have to stabilize the population in perpetuity and stabilize it at a level that is sustainable so the planet's life support systems are not damaged in which case we would sow the seed of our own destruction [16].

This may be referred to as the third law of civilization building and is preceded by two others that have constituted the matrix of control across cultures for the past ten centuries, namely: (1) that you have to limit the quantity of life to improve the quality and you must do it selectively to aid and accelerate the process of natural selection and improve the intelligence and genetic makeup of the stock; (2) and that you have to slow down population growth to remain within the technical ability of society to produce food and build infrastructure and you have to do it by any means necessary because failing to do it will have disastrous consequences.

The law that currently governs the building of our civilization will be followed by a fourth and final law of civilization building, namely:

That once a state of harmony is reached between civilization and nature all subsequent progress depends on society's ability to reduce the number of people in direct but inverse proportion with the per capita increase in the consumption of resources and that this reduction has to be accomplished with everyone's free and conscious collaboration. In other words, the more technologically advanced our civilization becomes the fewer people can be accommodated on planet earth and all people must contribute to mankind's reduction in numbers to enable mankind's ascension in level of civilization (Figure 1).
